Eric England

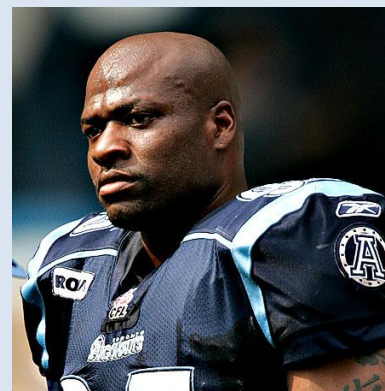

Eric has played in four pro football leagues. His career as a defensive end began his career in the NFL where he played for the Phoenix Cardinals from 1994 to 1996 suiting up for 37 games with the club. He spent from 1997 to 1999 on the rosters of the Tennessee Titans and Carolina Panthers without seeing game action.

Eric came to the CFL to play with the British Columbia Lions in 2000 and in 2001 it was on to the San Francisco Demons of the XFL. He then joined the Detroit Fury of the Arena Football League for the 2002 season before moving on to the New York Dragons of the AFL in 2003. Later in 2003, he came back to the CFL with the Toronto Argonauts where he played through the end of the 2006 season.

Salary cap restrictions forced his departure from the league although many think he had some good football left in him. He was a four-time winner of the CFL lineman of the week including consecutive weeks late in his final season and had recently intercepted a Henry Burris pass and ran it back 80 yards for a touchdown. That doesn't sound like a player who could no longer perform.

Eric was a CFL all-star in 2003 when he led the CFL with 14 sacks. His crowning glory was a Grey Cup victory with the Argos in 2004.
