Paul Blair

Paul was the premier defensive centerfielder of his era for the Baltimore Orioles. He won 8 Gold Glove awards, including 7 consecutively from 1969 to 1975. He was quick and sure-handed, committing only 54 career errors in 4,400 chances for a fielding percentage of .988.

Paul also had some good years with the bat as well. He hit .293, 5th in the American League, in 1967 and led the league with 12 triples.

In 1977, Paul was traded to the New York Yankees.

In the Big Apple, Paul was largely a defensive replacement in the outfield for the Yankees big-hitting, but defensively uncommitted players.

In 1979, Paul went to the Cincinnati Reds but returned to the Yankees to close out his career in 1980. Blair was named to the all-star team in 1969 and 1973. He won 4 World Series rings – two with Baltimore and two with the Yankees.
