Scott Sanderson

You've got to be a pretty good pitcher to pitch for 19 Major League seasons. This is what Scott did for 7 different teams, although 12 of those seasons were with just 2 teams.

Scott joined the Montreal Expos in 1978 and played in Quebec until 1983. During that time, he had a 16-win season and had a losing record only once (1983) in his 6 seasons in La Belle Province. He was traded to the Chicago Cubs for the 1984 season and he spent another 6 seasons in the Windy City. In his days with the Cubs, he had a .500 won-loss record but was a workhorse on the mound.

In 1990, he signed as a free agent with the Oakland A's and had his best season of his career winning a career-high 17 games against 11 losses. Oakland sold Scott to the New York Yankees for the 1991 season and he won 28 games in the Big Apple over the next two seasons, being selected to the all-star team in 1991. On the move again as a free agent, Scott signed with the California Angels only to pick off the waiver wire by the San Francisco Giants part way through the 1993 season.

With his bags packed for travelling, Scott signed with the Chicago White Sox for 1994 and then spent the next two seasons back with the Angels again, the team that previously waived him, until he retired at the conclusion of the 1996 season. His career stats are impressive. 163 wins, over 2,500 innings pitched, only 625 walks against 1,611 strikeouts.

Scott is an articulate and knowledgeable player who will deliver a rousing message to your group.
