

David Tyree

David Tyree is of course know for the “Helmet Catch” in Super Bowl XLII which helped to lead the New York Giants to victory over the previously undefeated and heavily favoured New England Patriots. It is considered by many to be the greatest catch in Super Bowl history. But there is so much more to David than football.

Along with his professional achievements, David has a personal desire to see others experience the fullness of God’s unique love. Being a professional athlete did not merely bring self-enjoyment but also offered him a chance to be a voice to a generation that worships sports. David has taken advantage of the opportunities to serve various ministries and charities over the course of his career and even presently as well. He currently serves on the board of Children of the City, which is an organization that has successfully served the children and families of Southwest Brooklyn for more than two decades by changing the culture of poverty through education and outreach.

Now more than ever, David is aware of the character disparity in our nation. He recognizes the cost of poor decisions and the urgency for mentorship. He is ardent about impacting this generation in a way that will lead to transformation and good success. David is one who can identify with the many challenges life presents, and he is filled with a heart of compassion for people in every walk of life. Through his personal relationship with Jesus Christ, he has seen every area of His life restored and turned into a story of redemption and hope.

David is happily married to the wife of his youth for more than 15 years (and counting), and they have the privilege of parenting seven children. He has a zealous passion in serving others and sharing the importance of remaining steadfast in the ways of Jesus Christ.
